The Court of Appeals yesterday decided the Breckinridge-Pratt contest case over the office of Attorney General of Kentucky, in favor of Judge Pratt, Republican nominee, and directing the retirement of Breckinridge.

Justice Coffey delivered the opinion, which is in substance: "The judgment or decision of the State Board of Election is void, and conferred no right upon the Supreme Breckinridge, and could not affect the appeal of Pratt's right and title to the office in contest, and the Court below erred in rendering the judgment appealed from."

Justices Burdick, Burnam and O'Rear concurred and Justices Paynter, Hobson and White dissent.

BIG LOSS OF LIFE.

Probably Thirty Persons Perished as a Result of a Fire in the Bullion Tunnel.

SEVENTEEN BODIES RECOVERED.

About 170 Men Succeeded in Reaching Safety by Another Exit From the Burning Mine.

The Shaft Was Filled With Smoke and It Was Six Hours Before a Rescuing Party Could Effect an Entrance.

Telluride, Col., Nov. 21.—By a fire in the Bullion tunnel, belonging to the Smuggler Union Mining Co., probably 30 lives were lost Wednesday. Seventeen bodies have been recovered. The fire, which is known to have been accidental, started Wednesday morning in the buildings at the mouth of the tunnel. At this point is located the upper terminal of the railway to the company's new mill at Pandora and it was in the bank house attached that the fire first started. From this it spread to the terminal station, which, with its ore bins and machinery, is a mass of ruins.

The shaft of 200 men had entered the mine and, being at their stations when the fire broke out, they were rescued.

The tunnel acted as a flue and a great volume of smoke poured in and filled the slopes. About 170 of the men succeeded in reaching safety by another exit. The fire rapidly burned itself out, but the mine was so filled with smoke that it was six hours before rescuing parties could penetrate the slopes where the less fortunate were. At 1 o'clock the first body was recovered, and at 6:30 17 dead had been removed from the mine. The engineer, Hugh J. O'Neil, was found alive, but is not expected to recover. No list of dead is yet obtainable.

A TERRIBLE CRASH.

Two Passenger Trains, Running at Full Speed, Collided on the Santa Fe Road.

SEVEN TRAINMEN WERE KILLED.

The Three Engines Were Crushed and Blown to Pieces by an Explosion That Followed.

The Collision Is Said to Have Been Due to a Disregard of Orders On the Part of One of the Crews.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—In a passenger wreck on the Santa Fe railroad one mile west of Prateria, Ariz., a switch train 20 miles west of Needles, Cal., Wednesday morning, seven trainmen were killed and three passengers and 14 trainmen were injured. Two limited trains one east, and one west bound, crashed together Wednesday morning. The east bound train was drawn by two engines, while the other train had but one locomotive. The three engines were crushed and blown to pieces by an explosion which followed the collision. Both the trains were made up of heavy vestibular cars, and several of the cars burned up. The dining cars, one on each train, one Pullman and two composite cars were destroyed.

The collision is said to have been due to a disregarding of orders on the part of the crew of the west bound limited. From all accounts, however, it is gathered that the east bound train was not stopped by the signal at Prateria, and, aware of the moving of the west bound flyer, which was running two hours late, and trying to make up time.

Collided Without Warning.

The east bound train failed to reach the siding, and, as the west bound train did not wait for it, the two trains collided without warning, and with an awful crash. The boiler of the west bound train is said to have exploded immediately after the crash, sending to death those of the engine crew who had not been killed outright. The bodies of Case and Armitage, firemen of the east bound train, and Sam Brown, waiter on the west bound train, who had not been killed outright, were burned to death.

A severe avalanche of confusion followed the crash. The massive engines piled in an indelible mass of broken and twisted steel, while the scalding steam hung in a dense, suffocating cloud over the debris, amidst which the agonizing wails of the injured and dying could be heard. The heavy Pullman and composite cars jammed the dining and baggage cars upon the pile, carrying death to the dining cars crews and kept the cars upon the pile.
